Summer fun facts for Kids!

The Eiffel Tower grows in summer: The tower can get nearly 6 inches (15 cm) taller when the weather is hot. Heat makes the iron parts move more and take up extra space, a process known as thermal expansion.

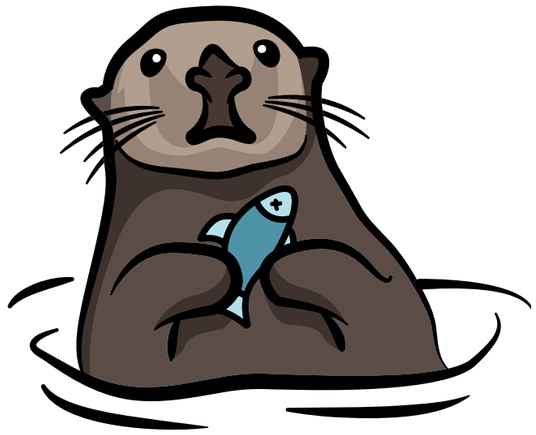

BRIGHT SIDE

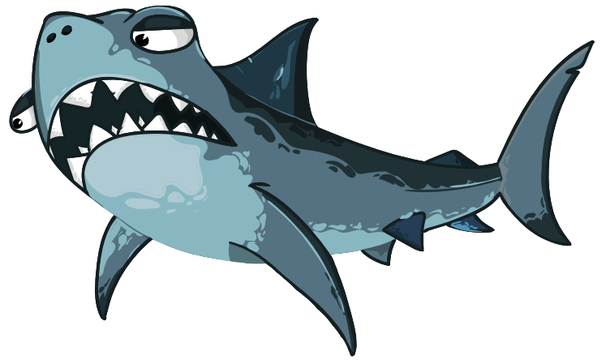

Honey never spoils: Archaeologists have found pots of honey in ancient Egyptian tombs that are thousands of years old and still safe to eat. Honey lasts so long because it has very little water and high acidity, which stops bacteria from growing.

BRIGHT SIDE
Sea otters hold hands: While sleeping in the water, sea otters hold hands so they do not float away from each other. This group is called a raft.

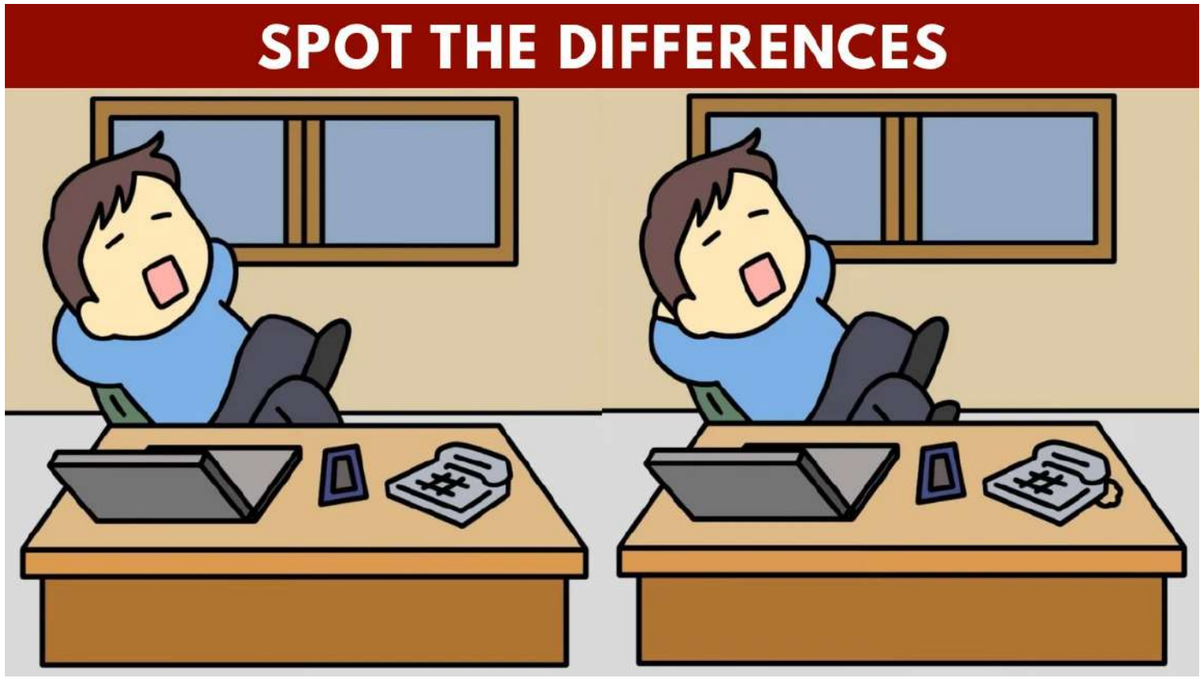

Spm Buzz
Venus spins backwards: Venus is the only planet in our solar system that rotates from east to west. This means the sun rises in the west and sets in the east on Venus.

Iberostar
Sharks can blink with both eyes: Sharks are the only known type of fish that can close and blink both of their eyes. Most other fish do not have eyelids and keep their eyes open all the time.

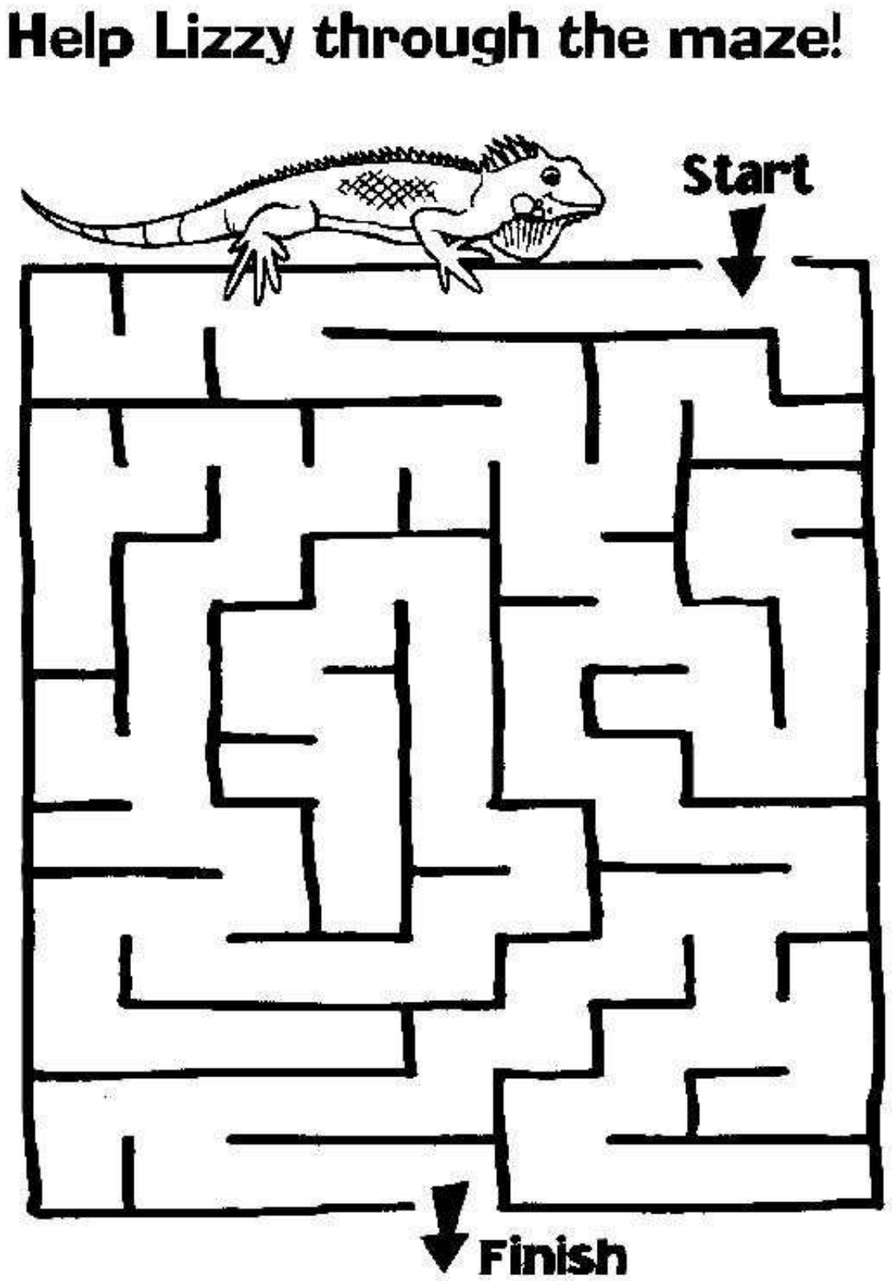

Let's have fun!

Why Looking After School Stationery Can Pay Off

As parents, we are always looking for ways to teach our children valuable life lessons. Recently, I had a conversation with a mother who shared a simple yet brilliant idea that caught my attention.

At the end of every school year, she asks her children to bring her all their remaining stationery. She then checks what is still in good, usable condition. A ruler that isn't broken, a set of koki pens that still work, pencils that have not been lost, and other items that can be used again the following year all qualify.

Here's where it gets interesting: she buys the items back from her children. For example, she might pay R5 for a ruler, R10 for a set of koki pens, or a few rand for other stationery items that have been well cared for.

The result? Her children have learned that looking after their belongings has value. Instead of losing or damaging stationery throughout the year, they take better care of it because they know there is a reward waiting at the end.

This simple system teaches several important life skills:

Responsibility

Respect for personal belongings

Money management

The importance of reducing waste

Understanding the value of resources

In a world where many items are easily replaced, this mother has found a creative way to show her children that taking care of what they have can actually pay off.

With school stationery becoming increasingly expensive, this idea not only saves parents money but also encourages children to develop habits that will benefit them throughout their lives.

Perhaps this is one lesson worth adding to every family's back-to-school checklist.

Be cool and look after your stationery.

Father or Dad is there a difference?

Father or Dad: Is There a Difference?

As Father's Day approaches, I find myself wondering about something that many people have debated over the years: What is the difference between a father and a dad?

A father is someone who gives life to a child. That is a biological fact. But being a dad seems to be something much bigger than biology.

A dad is present. He is there for his wife, his children, and his family. He is the person his family can rely on when times are difficult. He provides guidance, support, protection, and love. He celebrates the victories and helps carry the burdens when life to becomes challenging.

Being a dad is not an easy task. There are responsibilities that never end. There are bills to pay, children to raise, lessons to teach, and a family to care for. A dad often puts the needs of his family before his own. He works hard to build a future and create opportunities for those he loves.

Many families see the father as the foundation of the home. Just as God is often referred to as our Father in Heaven, many people believe a father should be a godly example within his household—leading with wisdom, love, patience, and integrity.

Of course, nobody is perfect. Every father makes mistakes. Every dad has moments when he feels he could have done better. Yet perhaps what truly defines a dad is not perfection, but his willingness to keep showing up, keep loving, and keep trying.

Maybe the difference between a father and a dad is simple. A father is a title. A dad is a relationship.

A father can exist without being involved. A dad chooses to be present.

This is not a statement but rather a conversation. What do you think? Is there a difference between being a father and being a dad? Or are the two one and the same?

I would love to hear your thoughts.

Fun Facts that Children should know!

🐙 An octopus has three hearts! Two hearts pump blood to the gills, and one pumps blood to the rest of the body.

🦒 A giraffe's tongue can be up to 50 cm long! It uses its tongue to grab leaves from tall trees.

🍯 Honey never spoils. Archaeologists have found pots of honey in ancient tombs that were still safe to eat.

🐧 Penguins can jump up to 2 metres out of the water! Their strong flippers help them launch themselves onto ice.

🌙 The Moon is slowly moving away from Earth. It drifts about 3.8 centimetres farther away every year.

🦋 Butterflies taste with their feet! When they land on a leaf, they can tell if it is good to eat by standing on it.

Did You Know? A group of flamingos is called a flamboyance—one of the most colourful names in the animal kingdom! 🦩✨
